Frustration in Florida

STALLED: People in West Palm Beach wait in a long line to buy gas Wednesday as delays in efforts to distribute supplies to victims of Hurricane Wilma tested residents' patience. Many Floridians were still struggling to find food, water, ice and gas on the third day of recovery from Wilma, waiting in line for hours — sometimes in vain. ♦ 'Don't blame FEMA': Gov. ## Top Aides Waiting Anxiously

White House expects word of any leak indictments soon

WASHINGTON | The waiting for possible indictments in the CIA leak probe caused high anxiety at the White House on Wednesday, as presidential advisers worked to show the Bush administration engaged in the U.S. priorities.

If Karl Rove, one presidential adviser entangled in the case, was feeling nervous, he was not showing it. As he walked outside the White House, photographers snapped a picture of him smiling, standing at attention and saluting a passing colleague.

There is a lot of tension in the West Wing, but staff members are not talking about what's happening, a senior administration official said, adding that President Bush wasn't showing signs of tension.

Prosecutor Patrick Fitzgerald, who is wrapping up a two-year criminal investigation into who leaked the identity of a CIA officer, is expected to decide this week whether to charge Rove, the deputy White House chief of staff; I. Lewis "Scooter" Libby, Vice President Dick Cheney's chief of staff; or others.

Fitzgerald had a confidential lunchtime meeting with a federal judge Wednesday after a grand jury listened to three hours of testimony in the case. The jury's term expires on Friday, and the panel adjourned for the day without announcing any charges or other action. Lawyers representing White House officials expect Fitzgerald to decide this week whether to charge Libby and Rove. (AP)

'Easy Toss' Toilet Paper Also Criticized

English supermarket chain Asda is under fire after selling 9-packs of eggs with the phrase "Halloween Fun" on the packaging, the Daily Post reported. Customers complain the store is encouraging kids on Halloween to "egg" houses (throwing eggs at homes and cars). One town's community safety official said he was disgusted by the marketing ploy. "We are trying across Merseyside to teach young people about being responsible, showing respect and understanding to other people," George Davies of Merseyside said. (EXPRESS)

Gov. Bush: Blame Florida, Not FEMA

Residents struggle to find supplies in wake of Hurricane Wilma

MIAMI | Gov. Jeb Bush took the blame Wednesday for frustrating delays at centers distributing supplies to victims of Hurricane Wilma, saying criticism of the Federal Emergency Management Agency was misdirected.

"Don't blame FEMA. This is our responsibility," Bush said at a news conference in Tallahassee with federal Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff, who oversees the agency.

Many Floridians were still struggling to find food, water, ice and gas on the third day of recovery from Wilma, waiting in line for hours — sometimes in vain. Miami-Dade's mayor called the distribution system flawed and said at least one relief site of 11 in his county ran out of supplies.

THE WAITING GAME: Residents wait in a long line to receive water and ice in Opa Locka, Fla., on Wednesday, two days after Hurricane Wilma thrashed the state.

"We did not perform to where we want to be," Bush said.

The governor added, however, that people seeking relief should have done more to prepare for the storm.

"People had ample time to prepare. It isn't that hard to get 72 hours worth of food and water," said Bush, repeating the advice that officials had given days before Wilma hit.

Florida's official death toll from Wilma doubled from five to 10 Wednesday, and the storm also killed at least 12 people in Haiti, four in Mexico and one in Jamaica.

Negligence Ruling in '93 WTC Bombing

Jury says Trade Center owners didn't properly maintain its garage

NEW YORK | A jury ruled Wednesday that the agency that owned and operated the World Trade Center was negligent in the 1993 truck-bombing in the underground garage — a long-awaited legal victory for victims of an attack that killed six people and wounded 1,000 eight years before terrorists brought down the towers.

The six-person jury ruled that the Port Authority, the agency that owned the World Trade Center, was negligent by not properly maintaining the parking garage where terrorists detonated more than a half-ton of explosives in a rented Ryder van. Several separate trials will now be held to determine money damages.

The jury took just one day to reach its verdict after the four-week trial.

The trial cast the spotlight on an attack that was overshadowed after Sept. 11, but was horrific nonetheless. The noontime blast blew a gigantic crater in the garage, filled the building with smoke, wrecked the towers' power and emergency systems, and spread fear across New York.

The verdict came after almost 12 years of legal delays in the civil case. The Port Authority's last appeal, to try to get the case thrown out, was rejected last year, clearing the way for the trial.

The agency vowed to appeal. "The Port Authority is confident it will prevail," lawyer Marc Kasowitz said. SAMUEL MAULL (AP)

Miers' Ties to Bush Scrutinized

Senator releases list of questions as skepticism over nominee increases

WASHINGTON | The chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee served notice Wednesday he intends to question Harriet Miers about the Bush administration's policy of detaining suspected terrorists at Guantanamo Bay, injecting new uncertainty into a Supreme Court nomination already in doubt.

In a letter to Miers, who is White House counsel, Sen. Arlen Specter also said he would ask what assurances she could offer that she would be independent, if confirmed, "and not give President Bush any special deference on any matter involving him that might come before the court."

Specter, R-Pa., released the letter as the White House struggled to build support for an appointment that has drawn withering criticism from prominent conservatives.

Three GOP officials said they no longer felt certain that Miers' troubled nomination would survive as long as the Nov. 7 target date for hearings, and that a withdrawal was not out of the question. They spoke on condition of anonymity, noting that the administration's official policy is one of strong continued support for the president's pick.

Miers met with Sen. David Vitter, R-La., the latest in a round of senatorial courtesy calls, and labored to answer written questions from the Judiciary Committee by day's end.

Government Mulls At-Home AIDS Test

WASHINGTON | Swab the inside of your mouth. Put that swab into a vial of test fluid, and 20 minutes later you'll learn whether you're infected with the virus that causes AIDS.

The OraQuick Advance test is already widely available in health clinics and doctors' offices. The Food and Drug Administration is considering permitting it to be sold over the counter.

Supporters of home kits say they will spur more people to get tested and get treatment sooner if infected. However, concerns have been raised about whether a doctor or counselor should be nearby when people find out they are HIV-positive.

The test is accurate more than 99 percent of the time, says its maker, OraSure Technologies Inc. of Bethlehem, Pa. Still, a positive result from the test should be confirmed through an additional test by doctors or public health officials, he said. (AP)

Suicide Bomber Hits Israeli Market

At least 5 die in worst attack on country in more than 3 months

HADERA, ISRAEL | A 20-year-old Palestinian blacksmith blew himself up at a falafel stand in an open-air market Wednesday, killing five Israelis and wounding more than 30 in the deadliest attack in the country in more than three months.

The bombing stifled faint peace hopes following Israel's pullout from the Gaza Strip. The blast also embarrassed Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas, who only hours earlier had scolded militant groups for repeatedly violating a truce.

The Islamic Jihad claimed responsibility, saying the attack was to avenge the killing of its West Bank leader by Israeli forces this week.

DEADLY STRIKE: Israeli medics evacuate the body of a victim from the scene of a suicide bomb attack at a falafel stand in the Israeli city of Hadera on Wednesday.

The bomber struck while the market in the central town of Hadera was bustling a day after being closed for the Jewish holiday of Simchat Torah. After the attack, the bloodied body of a man in his 50's lay on the ground among scattered fruits and mangled metal shards.

The attack came hours after Iran's state-run media reported comments from Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad calling for Israel to be "wiped off the map" and saying a new wave of Palestinian attacks would destroy the Jewish state.

In Gaza late Wednesday, masked Islamic Jihad militants held a news conference at which they celebrated the attack in Hadera as a "great victory as a message to our beloved Palestinian people and Islamic and Arab nations." ARON HELLER (AP)

Long Wait For Flights In Mexico

CANCUN, MEXICO | Thousands of desperate tourists stranded by Hurricane Wilma besieged airports and tour offices Wednesday as officials faced the challenge of evacuating 22,000 visitors with only 6,000 airline seats available out of Cancun.

While most of the flooding had receded and electricity was returning, frustrated tourists who had gone nearly a week without showering said they could relate to those who survived Hurricane Katrina.

"Now I know how those people in New Orleans felt," said Angela Benites, 48, of Mexico City.

Officials set up makeshift airline counters at a high school where representatives worked to evacuate those left. Tourists on chartered tours were leaving first, with the help of travel agents.

Thousands had been bused to Merida on the other side of the Yucatan Peninsula, but those trips were halted Wednesday because the airport was full and flights were booked for a week, officials said. (AP)

In Europe, Halloween Draws Boos

Some issue call to skip holiday, calling it a 'bad American habit'

VIENNA, AUSTRIA | It's almost Halloween — and all those ghosts, goblins, tricks and treats are giving Hans Kohler the creeps.

So the mayor of Rankweil, a town near the border with Switzerland, has launched a one-man campaign disparaging Halloween as a "bad American habit" and urging families to skip it this year.

Although Halloween has become increasingly popular across Europe — complete with carved pumpkins, witches on broomsticks, makeshift houses of horror and costumed children rushing door to door for candy — it's begun to breed a backlash.

Critics see it as the epitome of crass, U.S.-style commercialism. Clerics and conservatives contend it clashes with the spirit of traditional Nov. 1 All Saints' Day remembrances.

And it's got purists in countries struggling to retain a sense of uniqueness in Europe's ever-enlarging melting pot grimacing like Jack o' Lanterns.

Germans alone spend nearly $170 million, on Halloween costumes, sweets and parties. The holiday has also grown in Romania, home to the Dracula myth, where nightclubs throw parties with bat and vampire themes. WILLIAM J. KOLE (AP)

E. Coli in Water Sparks Evacuation

TORONTO | Ontario began evacuating about 1,000 residents of a remote northern Ontario Indian reservation on Wednesday after drinking water was found to have potentially deadly E. coli bacteria.

Roughly 1,000 of the 1,900 residents of the Kashechewan

First Nation reserve off the western shores of James Bay are being flown out of the area. Premier Dalton McGuinty ordered the evacuation on Tuesday after declaring a state of emergency.

Indian leaders in the area say the water problems are linked to Kashechewan's 10-year-old water treatment, which was built downstream from a sewage lagoon and is beyond repair. (AP)

Assad Didn't Talk to U.N. Investigators

UNITED NATIONS | U.S. Ambassador John Bolton said Wednesday that Syrian President Bashar Assad refused to meet U.N. investigators probing the assassination of Lebanon's former prime minister, but would be required to submit to questioning under a proposed new U.N. resolution.

Bolton's comments were the first confirmation that investigators had tried to talk to Assad about the Feb. 14 car bomb in Beirut that killed Rafik Hariri.

The resolution introduced Tuesday by the U.S., France and Britain would require Syria to detain any Syrian official or civilian the U.N. investigators might consider a suspect in the probe. (AP)

Expanded Role for New Iraqi Troops

Freshly trained soldiers helping to conduct patrols in restive cities

HADITHA, IRAQ | Two months after a crash course on the basics of soldiering, hundreds of Iraqi troops have been thrown into a bitter fight here — tasked with helping keep the peace and restore local security forces in this restive Sunni Arab city.

Their introduction into western Iraq after a U.S.-led offensive this month represents a major shift for the U.S. military. Previously, the United States had relied on Marines to rush periodically into this lawless area and push out insurgents.

At a time when more than 2,000 U.S. troops have died in Iraq, the training and placement of Iraqi troops — especially into hostile and violent areas like Anbar province — is considered a key step toward allowing American troops to draw down at some future point.

Now these Iraqi soldiers — hundreds of them on their first patrols, and virtually all unfamiliar with the area — are assigned the mission of helping Marines permanently keep out insurgents and block their path to Baghdad.

Iraqi soldiers say there is a shortage of Sunni troops from this region in the new army, partly because of fears of reprisals from insurgents.

The top U.S. commander in the Iraq, Gen. George Casey, acknowledged this month that only one Iraqi battalion — fewer than 1,000 men — was capable of fighting without U.S. help. That's down from a previous estimate of three battalions.

New Deal Struck On U.S. Military Bases in Japan

TOKYO | The United States on Wednesday averted a possibly damaging battle over the large American military presence in Japan, striking a deal with its top ally in Asia over the relocation of a Marine base in Okinawa and paving the way for broader realignment talks this weekend.

Under a Japanese proposal, the U.S. agreed to close the Futenma Marine Corps Air Station in the crowded southern part of the island and move its functions to Camp Schwab in the north, officials said.

Both sides compromised on the major sticking point in the deal: construction of a heliport on reclaimed land off Okinawa.

The U.S. agreed to build only part of the heliport on reclaimed land, but managed to negotiate a longer runway than the Japanese had sought, the Kyodo News Agency said. (AP)

New Human Cases of Bird Flu Probed

PARIS | Preliminary tests indicate that three people on France's Indian Ocean island of Reunion may have the H5N1 bird flu virus after taking a trip to Thailand, authorities said Wednesday.

The three visited a bird park in Thailand, and photos show they were in close contact with birds there, a French Health Ministry spokeswoman said.

Reunion authorities said a 43-year-old man was hospitalized with a fever and strong headaches Saturday, three days after spending a week in Thailand. He is receiving antiviral treatments.

Nineteen others who took the same trip were questioned about their health. Among them, two had flu symptoms, and Monard said preliminary tests for them were also positive for H5N1. They, too, were given antiviral treatments but at home, the French Health Ministry said. (AP)

$580M Pledged to Aid Quake Victims

GENEVA | Governments and other donors told the United Nations on Wednesday they were pledging an additional $580 million for Pakistani earthquake victims, but U.N. officials said it was unclear how much would be earmarked for immediate relief efforts.

The U.N. had requested $550 million in immediate aid on the eve of the donors' conference in Geneva, but officials said some of the new money might go to other aid groups or reconstruction projects.

So far, $111 million has been specifically earmarked for the U.N. appeal, top U.N. relief coordinator Jan Egeland told reporters.

Donors had been slow to respond to initial fund-raising appeals, with the U.N. only receiving a third of the $312 million it requested. (AP)

Dust, dirt, pollen, animal dander and other air-borne contaminants are pulled into your duct system every time the furnace or air conditioner runs.

These contaminants build up inside the ductwork over time and can help make your duct system a breeding ground for mold spores, bacteria, fungus, mildew and other microbes.

Each time the furnace or air conditioner is turned on, contaminants are spewed out and circulated throughout your home and affect the health and comfort of your family.

Family members who suffer from allergies, asthma or other respiratory ailments as well as children and the elderly are especially vulnerable to the effects of indoor air pollutants.

The removal of contaminants from the entire HVAC system is recognized by industry experts as the most effective way to eliminate air duct pollutants. This is referred to as the "source removal" method of duct cleaning.

In addition to the obvious health benefits, ducts cleaning can help you maintain a cleaner home. It also helps to restore HVAC system capacity and lessen running time, resulting in lower heating and cooling bills.

The HEPA-AIRE method used by our company assures you that your ducts are being cleaned with the most advanced source removal equipment available.

Veggie Prices May Go Up

Storm damage to Fla. crops expected to limit tomato, pepper supply

IMMOKALEE, FLA. | Shoppers can expect to pay much more for tomatoes and peppers, especially in grocery stores along the East Coast, for the next two months because Hurricane Wilma flooded fields and tore through crops in Florida.

Florida growers who choose to replant destroyed crops likely won't be able to bring their produce to market for another two months. This will cause a temporary shortage of tomatoes and peppers since the state provides more than half of the nation's fresh vegetables between the months of November and February, industry officials said Wednesday.

Only California annually produces more fresh vegetables than Florida.

"As the supermarkets come to expect those tomatoes and don't get them those prices are going to rise," said Ray Gilmer, a spokesman for the Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association.

After last year's hurricanes ruined some Florida vegetable crops, the price of tomatoes went from $1.50 to $2 a pound to as much as $4 to $5 a pound. But the price didn't go back down right away, even after the Florida crop returned to normal in early January, causing a drop in consumer demand.

"Prices go up quickly but drop slowly," Gilmer said.

Consumers may not see prices rise as dramatically as last year, however, because this year's California tomato-growing season has lasted longer than last season, and Mexican tomatoes should begin flowing into the U.S. in December, said Reggie Brown, manager of the Florida Tomato Committee, which markets Florida's tomatoes.

Leaders to Combat Traffic

Md., Va., plan studies of area bridges to ease burden on commuters

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | Maryland and Virginia will spend about $1 million each on two studies that will look at ways to reduce congestion on the Woodrow Wilson and American Legion bridges across the Potomac River.

Maryland Gov. Robert Ehrlich and Virginia Gov. Mark Warner made the announcement after a meeting Tuesday. The two studies will look at possible toll lanes, and lanes for rail or bus lanes and high occupancy vehicles.

Warner said the states have been working separately to improve traffic flow on the congested Capital Beltway and now need to look at the bridges.

One of the options would be so-called HOT lanes that are open only to motorists with passes that automatically deduct tolls as they drive on the restricted lanes.

Pierce Homer, Virginia's transportation secretary, said each study will cost about $1 million, with Maryland paying for the stretch from Georgetown Pike in Virginia to I-370 in Maryland that includes the American Legion Bridge and Virginia picking up the tab for a 14-mile stretch from the Springfield interchange to Route 5 in Maryland.

OTHER TRANS-POTOMAC COORDINATION DISCUSSED

→ At Tuesday's regional meeting in Annapolis, with officials from D.C., Maryland and Virginia also discussed ways to cooperate on preparations for terrorist threats and attacks and natural disasters, as well as issues such as homeland security and tourism. Maryland Gov. Robert Ehrlich said he gave his counterparts in Virginia and D.C. a detailed report on how federal, state and local officials handled last week's threat against Baltimore's Harbor and Fort McHenry tunnels. ## D.C. Council Considers Rent Control Changes

WASHINGTON | District of Columbia Council members are seeking to strengthen rent control regulations for the first time in 20 years.

However, some city lawmakers want to limit future rent control benefits to permanent residents and those with limited income.

"We want developers to make money, but they shouldn't be greedy," said Council member Marion Barry, D-Ward 8, at a hearing Wednesday.

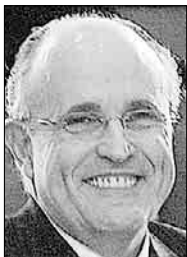

The District's current regulations are based on laws enacted in 1985, which have been reaffirmed, virtually unchanged, every five years. Members are expected to consider five new proposals before the end of the year.

The measures would cap rent increases, under most circumstances, at 10 percent annually and eliminate the optional twice annual rent increases now available to operators.

Tenants would also be guaranteed the rights to organize and challenge rent increases in regulatory hearings. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Pr. George's Keeps Ban on Pit Bulls

UPPER MARLBORO, MD. | The Prince George's County Council has decided to maintain a nine-year old ban on the ownership of pit bulls. The council voted 8-1 against amending the county's vicious dog law after three hours of often emotional testimony yesterday.

The ban was imposed in 1996 after a series of pit bull attacks, as well as complaints from residents about dogs wandering the streets and reports of staged dog fights. (AP)

Deer Unhurt After Georgetown Visit

WASHINGTON | A young deer romped through two upscale shops in Georgetown on Wednesday before animal control officers tranquilized it.

The animal, described by one shop owner as a buck with small antlers, ran into the Diesel clothing store on Wisconsin Avenue NW at about 5 p.m., store employees said.

"It ran straight to the back of the store and it saw itself in the mirror, so it started ramming itself," store manager Kira Sternburg said.

One of the employees turned off the lights, and the deer left, then ran into the Ralph Lauren store next door, went into a fitting room in the back.

The store was evacuated while animal control officers were called to the scene. No one was injured. The deer was unharmed and was set free in a safe area after being revived. (AP)

In Brief

MANASSAS, VA.
Man Accused of Murdering Wife Found Guilty by Judge

A Manassas man accused of murdering his wife and leaving her body in the District has been convicted of second-degree murder. Gerardo Lara was convicted of first-degree murder in April. But that verdict was overturned after a videotape showed one of the jurors buying newspapers that contained stories about the trial. This time around, there was no jury. Circuit Court Judge Rossie Alston Jr. heard the case and decided the verdict. (AP)

BETHESDA, MD.
Police Say Hotel Attack, Book Store Exposure Linked

Montgomery County police believe one man is responsible for a sexual assault and a case of indecent exposure in Bethesda. Investigators say a 21-year-old woman was attacked on Oct. 16 with a stun gun while working as a pool lifeguard at the Bethesda Marriott, but was not seriously injured. That same evening, a man exposed himself to two sisters reading inside the Border's Books and Music at White Flint Mall. The description given by the assault victim was similar to the book store surveillance video. (AP)

Jansen Is Redskins' Unsung Hero

Others may grab the headlines, but tackle's return is key to success

REDSKINS | Jon Jansen is expecting his first child in February, but don't try to shake his hand to congratulate him. The thumbs are still too delicate, even though he no longer wears those huge casts.

"It's funny," Jansen said, looking at his hand. "I can go out and beat people with it, but I can't do anything real small with it. I don't really have much control over it right now."

For someone trying to come to grips with two broken thumbs, Jansen is having quite an impact. There's no shortage of players responsible for the Washington Redskins' offensive improvement this season. The popular list usually begins with Mark Brunell, Santana Moss, Chris Cooley and Clinton Portis, but shouldn't the veteran right tackle make it into a top five?

"He should," coach Joe Gibbs said. "He's a leader, mainly by the way he plays — and by example."

Jansen always gets a bit more attention during New York Giants week because his matchups with defensive end Michael Strahan are mano-a-mano classics for anyone

BLOCK HEAD: Thanks to the return of Jon Jansen, the Redskins' offensive line has been leading long drives in each game for Washington thus far in the season.

REDSKINS NOTES

→ John Hall said he thinks he will be the Redskins' kicker this week after missing five games with a quad injury. There's no word from coach Joe Gibbs yet.

→ Nine other players fill the injury report, but all are probable for Sunday. Cornelius Griffin, Sean Taylor, Aki Jones and Cedric Killings didn't practice, though.

who studies life in the trenches. They've been going at it since 1999, although Jansen missed last season because he ruptured an Achilles' tendon in preseason, the team's first piece of bad news in a season that spiraled downward to 6-10.

Having Jansen return has been like adding a blue chip free agent, one with a forceful leadership presence who knows the team inside and out. This year, the offensive line has been leading the march down the field. The Redskins (4-2) are ranked No. 2 in the league in yards gained and have one of their most meaningful games in years Sunday against the Giants (4-2), co-leaders in the NFC East.

"I think we can make a huge statement," said Jansen, one of only two players remaining from the Redskins' last playoff team. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Sheryl Swoopes said that she was "tired of having to hide my feelings."

Swoopes Comes Out As Lesbian

WNBA MVP worries revelation may alter fans' views about her

WNBA | Houston Comets forward Sheryl Swoopes is opening up about being a lesbian, telling a magazine that she's "tired of having to hide my feelings about the person I care about."

Swoopes, honored last month as the WNBA's Most Valuable Player, told ESPN The Magazine for a story on newsstands Wednesday that she didn't always know she was gay and fears that coming out could jeopardize her status as a role model.

"Do I think I was born this way? No," Swoopes said. "And that's probably confusing to some, because I know a lot of people believe that you are."

Swoopes, who was married and has an 8-year-old son, said her 1999 divorce "wasn't because I'm gay."

A five-time All-Star and three-time Olympic gold medalist, Swoopes is the WNBA's only three-time MVP. She said her biggest worry about her revelation is that people will be afraid to look up to her.

"I don't want that to happen," she said. "Being gay has nothing to do with the three gold medals or the three MVPs or the four championships I've won. I'm still the same person. I'm Sheryl." (AP)

WORLD SERIES | For those who fell asleep or simply weren't watching, you missed one whale of a World Series game.

By far the longest in history — and one of the best, too.

Phil Garner threw a stool in the dugout. Ozzie Guillen called in eight relievers. And backup infielder Geoff Blum became a star in Chicago with one unlikely swing in the 14th.

Inning after inning, the tension increased as the White Sox and Astros played on. Tuesday night turned into Wednesday morning, but still nobody could break through. Players grew frustrated, tired, hungry.

When it was finally over, after 5 hours, 41 minutes and a record 43 players, Chicago was one win from a sweep and its first championship since 1917. "Right now we just want to get to bed," slugger Paul Konerko said afterward.

In his first World Series at-bat, Blum hit a tiebreaking homer off Ezequiel Astacio, sending the White Sox to a 7-5 victory over Houston in a memorable October marathon.

The teams combined to use 17 pitchers and strand 30 baserunners (15 each), both World Series records. Game 2 starter Mark Buehrle came on in relief to earn a save in Game 3.

Are you Depressed?

Have you been diagnosed with Major Depressive Disorder or Depression?

Have you tried at least one prescription anti-depressant medication that didn't work for you?

If you are between 18 and 65 years of age, and have had a poor response to anti-depressant medications in the past, you may qualify to participate in a research study.

If so, you will receive investigational medication and study-related physical exams.

DeBerry is under fire for comments he made after Air Force lost to TCU Oct. 15.

Air Force Coach Says He's Sorry

DeBerry reprimanded but won't lose job after remarks on minorities

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Air Force coach Fisher DeBerry was reprimanded by the top commander of the academy on Wednesday after making statements about black athletes and recruiting.

DeBerry issued a public apology, saying "I realize the things I said might have been hurtful to many people and I want everyone to understand that I never intended to offend anyone."

DeBerry raised the topic Monday while discussing Air Force's 48-10 loss to TCU, saying the academy needed to recruit faster players and noting, "you don't see many minority athletes in our program."

Asked about it Tuesday, DeBerry noted that TCU had more black players than Air Force. "It just seems to me to be that way," he said. "African-American kids can run very well."

Athletic director Hans Mueh said he talked with DeBerry early Wednesday and told him his comments were inappropriate. But Mueh said the 67-year-old coach would not lose his job. EDDIE PELLIS (AP)

Tech Aims to Run Over BC

Hokies look for 11th straight win playing on a Thursday night

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | The behemoths are coming.

That's about the way Virginia Tech's players and coaches size up Thursday night's game against No. 13 Boston College. The Eagles are huge, and they can run.

The No. 3 Hokies can, too, and they plan to run right at them.

"We're taking the whole thing — their line and that defense — as a challenge," right guard Jason Murphy said. "We're going to do what Virginia Tech does. We're going to pound the ball at them. If it breaks, it breaks. If it doesn't, we're game-planning."

The Hokies (7-0, 4-0 Atlantic Coast Conference) have won 10 consecutive Thursday night games, and suffered their only Thursday night loss to the Eagles in 1995.

That was the year their program

Marcus Vick and Virginia Tech will play on Thursday night for the second straight week, not that they mind. The last time the Hokies lost mid-week was in 1995 to BC.

took a major step forward in prominence, going to the Sugar Bowl and beating Texas, so they know Boston College can be formidable.

The Eagles (6-1, 3-1), who previously faced the Hokies in the Big East before each switched to the ACC, also will arrive having won 13 of their last 16 on the road. Five of those victories came against ranked teams, including the No. 12 Hokies in 2003.

3 BURNING QUESTIONS:

→ By How Much? Not only do the Hokies need a win, they need a blowout to help their cause in the BCS.

→ Is Kiwi a Fruit or a Vegetable?

Neither, if you're talking about BC's Mathias Kiwanuka, who's one of the nation's best defensive linemen and someone Va. Tech will have to stop.

→ Whose Ball Is It? Marcus Vick will have to guard against a three-interception game like he had against Maryland last week.

AP Pick: Va. Tech 38, BC 13

It will help that the Hokies will be back home, surrounded by more than 67,000 fired up fans who have made Lane Stadium an imposing place for visitors.

The Hokies have won 15 of 17 at home in the last three seasons, and this year have outscored visitors Ohio University, Georgia Tech and Marshall by a combined 137-21.

"Their energy has always been a big key for us," tight end Jeff King said. HANK KURZ JR. (AP)

The Muppets are back, catching a ride on the reality-TV wave

NOSTALGIA | The Muppets could be coming back to primetime television with a new mission: parodying reality shows.

ABC has ordered a script and five episode outlines for "America's Next Muppet," in which viewers may join in choosing the newest member of the puppet family like Kermit or Miss Piggy, a network spokeswoman said.

The premise has the ring of shows like “American Idol” or “America’s

GREEN AND LOVABLE: Kermit's the new Simon Cowell — minus the 'tude.

Next Top Model,” where the audience picks potential new stars.

ABC is part of the Walt Disney Co., which purchased the Muppets franchise from the Jim Henson Co. in 2004 and the right to use the characters in its theme parks, movies, TV shows and retail products.

The late Jim Henson's Muppets got their first, widespread exposure on PBS' "Sesame Street" in 1969.

The syndicated "The Muppet Show" aired from 1976-81 and was seen in more than 100 countries. The characters also briefly starred in "Muppets Tonight," part of ABC's 1996 primetime lineup.

Henson's puppets moved to the big screen in 1979 with "The Muppet Movie," followed by "The Great Muppet Caper" and "The Muppets Take Manhattan." (AP)

Ideas

The art of spotting trends has become, well, another trend

There was a time, way back in the late 1990s, when coolhunting was still cool, when nearly every Madison Avenue ad agency wanted a resident hipster to interpret the spending habits of those inscrutable Gen-Xers. Then the Internet exploded, connecting everyone to everything, and suddenly the art of predicting the next big trend got way more complicated.

Today, fads ping across continents and disappear so quickly that the coolhunter, even the whole notion of "cool," has become passe. Every big-city scenester or bored teenager on the planet has a blog or mass e-mail anointing the moment's hot restaurants, hobbies and handbags. Trend-spotting has, in essence, become just another trend. Consequently, the most successful trend forecasters are repositioning themselves as something more than mere arbiters of taste. They're now social scientists with a hipster edge. That's because it's no longer enough to be aware of "sex messaging" or video blogs or the drive-in movie revival. The real money and prestige are now bestowed on those who can translate the cultural hieroglyphics and the "whys" behind these blips.

For this reason, they no longer answer to the name "coolhunter." Some even bristle at the term "trend forecaster." Instead, they prefer "planner," "researcher" or "futurist."

They travel the world; watch people shop, eat and frolic; videotape and photograph them; monitor blogs; study census data; chat online with tens of thousands of consumers (most under 35); and devour every shred of pop culture they can find. They believe their research not only keeps marketing executives at Coca-Cola, Procter & Gamble, Nike and Microsoft, among others, attuned to our cravings, but they map the origins of choice and cultivate that most precious commodity of all: consumer insight.

Fad Futurists

It's an increasingly competitive field and even the most successful work hard to stand out. DeeDee Gordon and Sharon Lee of L.A.-based Look-Look Inc. specialize in youth culture and product development and brag that their 35,000-member database of trendsetters is among the largest of the competing firms. Jane Buckingham, president and founder of the Intelligence Group, is among the more visible of the top forecasters, with a show on the Style Network and a regular gig

"I think 'cool-hunting' was a sexy word that the media loved to use. Our culture loves creating new nomenclature."

DEEDEE GORDON
LOOK-LOOK INC.

on "Good Morning America."

Still, some see trend forecasters as nothing more than expensive soothsayers, bringing the illusion of control to a $250-billion ad industry wracked by uncertainty, a fragmented audience and anti-advertising technology.

For a short time, consultants were considered the silver bullet for any faltering campaign. But as trend forecasters look back, they realize this, in itself, was a fad.

"I think 'coolhunting' was a sexy word that the media loved to use," said Gordon. "Our culture loves creating new nomenclature. It's very faddish. It doesn't accurately describe the study of trends and analysis and what goes into it."

HOT DAMNED

↓ Aside from Bram Stoker's novel, nothing is more Victorian or vampy than a black corset ($24.90). Pair it with a corseted crinoline-lined skirt; the back, below, has a provocative period flounce ($34.90). Perfect for ravaging unholy villages or unworthy men. (H&M, SEE HM.COM FOR STORES)

WEB OF EVIL

↑ For life eternal, fling this blood-orange cashmere scarf around your neck to attract the hungry eyes of the living dead. It's warm and cozy, yet you'll find your jugular coquettishly exposed through the peepholes of this un-deadly winter accessory. (LORRAINE MCCUE SLITTED CASHMERE SCARF, IN NINE COLORS, $141, VIRGINTHREADS.COM)

TOOTH SOME TREATS

↑ Lady Van Helsing was recently spotted in Prague sporting these victim-flaunting jewels by KENNETH LANE. (NECKLACE, $175, EARRINGS, $48, WINK, 3109 M ST. NW; 202-338-9465)

PRETTY IN IMPALERS

→ REBELS' mid-calf boots entrap Slavic chic in bunny hair and leather. See what you can impale on these stilettos... ($79, SHOEFLY, 2618 WILSON BLVD, ARLINGTON; 703-243-6490)

Out

* Look into our eyes and be lured into a vampiric costume so subtle and seductive it will have life everlasting, or at least life until the next fashion cycle. No other look unites Slavic, Gothic and Victorian so convincingly (besides 18th-century Carpathian nun). SARA ATWATER (EXPRESS)

FANGS FOR THE MEMORIES

↑ Customize these reusable incisors for a look that doesn't bite (unless you prefer to buy your fangs from a gumball machine). Create a healthy just-feasted effect with LORAC'S lip and cheek stain. (SCARECROW FANGS, $20, BACKSTAGE INC, 545 8TH ST. SE; 202-544-5744; LORAC SHEER WASH, $17.50, SEE SEPHORA.COM FOR STORES)

Just Do It

Your spouse is craving a round of barnstorming aerobics aboard an old-fashioned open-cockpit biplane. Like you have time to track that down before the holidays. Get ready for the ride of your life, because at the just-launched EXCITATIONS.COM, biplane aerobics are a mere $450 away — as are secret agent-style driving lessons ($760), a housecall from an animal expert with a car-full of reptiles ($250) and comparatively tame stuff such as facials and private Pilates lessons. All of the site's experiential gifts take place in the D.C. area or within driving distance. HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

NEWS IN BRIEFS ►► YOUR MOST INTIMATES QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Q: Are there any costume ideas for those who would like to go mostly bare? A: Got a bad pun and an underwear drawer? Then you have a costume. Creative placement of an undergarment can make you a pantywaist or a butthead. There's the slip subgenre — a fake beard, glasses and a chemise gets you a Freudian slip, combining lingerie and twine turns you into the metal band Slipknot, charmingly pictured at right. Write "Over 18" on a T-shirt and wear tighty-whities to give lawyers a chuckle (legal brief). A garter snake can be both simple or complex, depending on the number of garters and/or snakes involved, though the concept will always sound a little dirty. If you can't decide, go as the eternal question: boxers or briefs? (EXPRESS)

War in Iraq

2,000 Deaths

Washington Post staff writer JOSH WHITE was online Wednesday to discuss the 2,000 U.S. fatalities in Iraq since March 2003 | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

What is the total of all American servicemen killed and wounded in Iraq including non-combat deaths? The total number of American troops killed and wounded in Iraq is as follows: 2,000 dead; more than 15,000 wounded. Non-hostile causes account for a little less than 19 percent of the total fatalities, including accidents, illnesses, etc.

Isn't it true that the 2,000 figure represents those who actually died in Iraq, and doesn't include those who died of injuries sustained in Iraq after they were evacuated? My understanding of the numbers is that the 2,000 figure represents all of the troops who have died as a result of participation in Operation Iraqi Freedom, including people who have died in Kuwait, at locations outside of Iraq and those who have been removed from the region for medical help and later passed away.

There were single day death tolls much higher than 2,000 in WWII. Is anyone calling that war a failure? This is a very good point. The deaths in Iraq are far, far less than America has experienced in previous wars. The world wars claimed more than half a million American lives and Vietnam claimed 58,000. The U.S. military fights very differently now than it did a half century ago, and the advanced weapons, body armor, and modern operational tactics the U.S. uses are keeping the number of U.S. casualties down.

Will this milestone boost the morale of the insurgents?

Any U.S. death on the battlefield boosts the morale of the insurgents, I'm sure. What I'm not sure about is what the insurgents would consider clear victory, or how long they can continue fighting at this pace. The insurgency is stronger and has lasted longer than almost anyone predicted, and as long as it can still attack U.S. forces, Iraqi forces and Iraqi civilians, it appears they are committed to doing so.

11:30 A.M.: Antiwar activist Cindy Sheehan will be online for an audio interview at 11:30 a.m. ET and an audio link will be posted upon its conclusion. Readers will be instructed to submit their questions before the discussion.

1 P.M.: Carson Kressley of "Queer Eye for the Straight Guy" discusses the wisdom of not wearing pleats and other style dos and don'ts.

Something to Celebrate?

HOW LONG WERE THE EDITORS at this newspaper waiting to unleash that bold, colorful and seemingly celebratory cover shot announcing the death of the 2,000th American soldier in Iraq (Oct. 26)? Is the 2,000th death for some reason more significant than those that came before it? Where is the big color photo celebrating the life of one Rosa Parks? What are we going to get for the 3,000th death, God forbid it occurs? A cake and soda party? I'm sure you have your cover shot ready to print already.

The 'Rights' of Gun Owners

AS AN IMPARTIAL PUBLICATION, you are obliged, when quoting gun rights groups' members' statements regarding "constitutional rights" to own guns, to also recognize that the Supreme Court does not interpret the Constitution as establishing a right to own and keep a firearm ("FEMA Lifts Gun Ban in Evacuation Housing Parks," Oct. 25). Otherwise, our hometown would not be able to enforce laws restricting gun possession.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may come in contact with someone who knows how to make sense of issues you've found difficult or even impenetrable. Try joining forces.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You won't find yourself waiting around too much. Be prepared to swing into action early on and to keep it up all day long.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Now is no time to neglect your home in any way. Keep things neat and tidy and don't forget to make those changes and improvements you've planned.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Don't live too much in your head at this time. Trust your feelings and your instincts, too; they won't steer you wrong.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) What begins with excitement will develop quickly into something that you're not likely to forget. Don't burn out.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) What you need to do now is spend some time fine-tuning; the major push is over now and it's time once again to concentrate on the details.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have reason to regret a recent decision, but before long you'll realize that you are indeed on the right road.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You needn't take things so seriously, but others will take you as seriously as you wish.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't lose sight of what you most want to attain. It may mean you have to go without one thing to acquire something else.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone close to you will want to get even closer, and the responses he or she gets from you are likely to surprise both of you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The more unusual it is, the more you're going to like it — whether at the workplace or at home. You may want someone else to call the shots.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) The unlikely may well prove likely, and vice versa. You may have to enter a new realm of activity to address certain issues.

Nicollette looks so pretty with her man of dubious fame. She's trading up.

PATTERNS

Symptoms of a Comeback: Dump Unfamous Boyfriend

NICOLLETTE SHERIDAN is no longer a fiancée. Sheridan, who plays Edie Britt on "Desperate Housewives," and Swedish actor Niklas Soderblom have called off their engagement, People magazine reported Wednesday. The couple "have parted ways after a year and a half," Sheridan's publicist, Nicole Perna, said. "They ask that you respect their privacy at this time." Sheridan and Soderblom became engaged last winter. It would have been the second marriage for Sheridan, who was wed to Harry Hamlin from 1991-93. (AP)

SHARK-JUMPING

Two Words: 'Twin Peaks'

You can count MARCIA CROSS among the fans of "Desperate Housewives" who want the characters' stories to connect again. "I think it would be nice if we start spending a little more time together," said Cross, who plays Bree. "I think in the first few episodes we weren't, but that wasn't anything sort of set in stone," she said. Cross said there are scenes that haven't aired yet, and she's not worried about backlash. (AP)

HUH?

Judge Dismisses Case As 'Too Damn Confusing'

The rapper DMX faces 60 days in prison after he pleaded guilty Tuesday to violating the conditions of his release following a car crash last year at John F. Kennedy International Airport, officials said. DMX pleaded guilty last December to reckless endangerment for the JFK crash. Since then, the rapper has been cited twice for traffic violations. (AP)

DMX, who crashed his SUV at JFK, is truly sorry for all the acronyms.

A 'Nasty' Rumor

JANET JACKSON says she is not a mother. In a terse statement released Wednesday to "Access Hollywood," the 39-year-old singer denied a former brother-in-law's claim that she has a secret 18-year-old daughter. "I do not have a child and all allegations saying so are false," Jackson said. On Friday, Young DeBarge, the brother of Jackson's ex-husband James DeBarge, said Jackson and his brother had a child named Renee. (AP)

Brando Jr. Sings a Fifth

Marlon Brando's son, a key figure in the wrongful death case of his former lover and Robert Blake's wife, refused to answer questions in court Tuesday. CHRISTIAN BRANDO's lawyer repeatedly invoked the Fifth Amendment on behalf of his client. Blake's lawyers have pointed at Brando as a possible suspect in the slaying of Bonny Lee Bakley. (AP)

Prostate Cancer and Hot Flashes Feel Like You're Losing Your Cool?

- Suddenly feeling hot or feverish
- Excessive sweating
- Flushed cheeks

Our local physicians are conducting a research study for men experiencing hot flashes as a result of prostate cancer treatment. This study will evaluate an investigational medication to see if it is effective in reducing the frequency and severity of hot flash occurrences.

You may qualify if you:

- Are 18 years of age or older
- Have been diagnosed with prostate cancer and received treatment
- Have been experiencing hot flashes on a regular basis for the past month

Qualified participants will receive all study-related care at no cost, including doctor visits, laboratory services and investigational study medication. Financial compensation may be available.

NAME: Silent Orchestra
GIG: Musicians-composers-sound designers

A SCARY SILENT MOVIE cries out for a creepy live soundtrack, and that's where Carlos Garza and Rich O'Meara come in. They'll be performing their improv-based accompaniment to a screening of F.W. Murnau's atmospheric horror classic "Nosferatu" at AFI Silver Friday night and on Halloween.

Most musicians probably don't start out composing for silent film.

O'MEARA: I came from a classical percussion background but also [have] an interest in jazz and rock; compositionally, I was mainly interested in writing for percussion.

GARZA: I've played a lot of different things. I was in some New Wave bands in the '80s and the contemporary jazz group Rich was in with me. I was in a country band, did some live comedy — improvising music behind the comedy — and that's what got me interested in not only improvising but doing music for the visual arts.

Do you take your cues visually?

O'MEARA: We watch the film as many times as we can and then we roll the film and improvise together.

GARZA: We actually go through a process that is similar to scoring a film — you sit down with a director and go through what happens. We have these almost imaginary conversations with these directors — they're all dead, right? — and wonder what are they trying to say here.

You run it silently?

GARZA: We just run it silently, or we play our own music or run it to a CD. With "Nosferatu," we sat down and talked about it in terms of leitmotifs. So the vampire character has a cello theme; the female character has a kind of piano theme. There are musical motifs as well as sound design elements.

The score has a lot of sound design.

O'MEARA: We mostly use samplers which allows us to sample acoustic sounds or whatever sound we want and then we manipulate them to play them back for the keyboard. In one case, a friend of mine had a lot of clips of bowed tam-tam music, and he processed them so that they were perfect for the character — a scraping and a buzzing.

GARZA: We call it expressionist sound design, so you're taking these things that are sort of familiar and manipulating the real world.

"We think about what kind of sounds make people scared."

Are there horror-movie soundtrack clichés you consciously avoided?

GARZA: I think it's just more of playing what felt right to us. We really didn't have a lot of preconceptions other than what seemed natural. We value the ability of some people to save these original stories, and that's a wonderful thing, but our goal is to bring these films to a new audience. So we think about what kind of sounds make people scared? We want today's audience to be as frightened by the film as if it's being made today.

Just Enough Love

Kindred maintains the Family Spirit with jazzy, uplifting R&B

MUSIC | Husband and wife duos can make an audience squeamish, especially in live performance. Either they exude emotional turmoil (read: Ike & Tina Turner) or they're so damn cuddly that watching them sing is as sickening as catching your parents having sex and they don't stop (read: Ashford & Simpson).

The Philly R&B duo Aja Graydon and Fatin Dantzer, known as Kindred the Family Soul, strikes a welcomed balance of the two, at least on record. They never hint at spousal discontent, but they certainly don't sugarcoat domestication.

PRIVATE MOMENTS: Aja and Fatin walk the line between loving and schmoopy.

Throughout Kindred's sophomore disc, "In This Life Together," the doldrums of parenthood and paying bills appear incessantly, sometimes extinguishing the erotic charge ignited by the couple's bracing vocals. Even the suggestively titled "Sneak a Freak" rates milder than PG-13 as they rhapsodize about their desire to get it on, but having to put the kids to bed first.

With old school family values to match its old school mélange of jazz-laden R&B, Kindred's music is most charming when they simply sing about giving each other emotional support as on "Struggle No More" and "Who's Gonna Comfort You."

These beautiful ballads may not exactly get you in the mood for baby-making, but hopefully you won't have to watch Kindred re-enact that intimate art either during their Friday night performance at the 9:30 Club as part of the Love & Music Tour with singers Jaguar Wright and Keke Wyatt. JOHN MURPH

Garage Fulla Gold

The Fleshtones
mine some rock
'Nuggets' of their own

MUSIC | Heedless of premature forecasts of rock's demise, the Fleshtones keep the American beat coming.

In August, nearly 30 years after the NYC quartet met the twin onslaughts of disco and punk by setting the Wayback Machine for the psychedelic '60s immortalized on Lenny Kaye's "Nuggets" compilations, the 'shtones released their 13th studio album, "Beachhead."

The disc dropped just a month and a half before Rhino Records paid the appropriate homage by featuring two early-'80s Fleshtones tracks on its "Children of Nuggets" box set.

Most of the band's new songs, including the trem-toned "Serious" ("about not being serious") and the frenetically sleazy "Push Up Man" ("I'm movin' in/I'm movin' out"), have a lot of fun getting completely stoopid.

But "I Want the Answers," penned

M. HENRY JONES

The reason the Fleshtones didn't die young is because they rock so hard.

by bassist Ken Fox, raises the stakes, giving the group's longevity the third degree. "I wanna know why," singer Peter Zarella pleads, "If I'm so good I didn't die young."

Being alive is, of course, its own reward. Besides, on the road, not in the ether, is where the 'shtones have made their name. Friday at Iota, freshly minted tunes will be tested in the crucible of live performance. No disc of vinyl or plastic, no digitized stream of zeros and ones could ever hope to capture the cracked mastery of a Fleshtones gig. Here's betting Zarella, Fox, guitarist Keith Streng and drummer Bill Milhizer will still be going strong long after Mick and Keef have gone holographic or animatronic.

Opening are the Kissers, who got underway seven years ago in Madison, Wis., as a Pogues cover band. Following a temporary relocation to Boston, they still traffic in the rollicking depression that is the birthright of every dispossessed child of the Emerald Isle — only now there's a little Violent Femmes and Camper Van Beethoven in the mix, too. GLENN DIXON

STAGE | PITCH BLACK

COURTESY SOLAS NUA

VISIONARY QUEST: Comedy doesn't get any darker than "Misterman," Enda Walsh's play being produced by the Irish arts organization Solas Nua. It's about Thomas Magill (played by Dan Brick, above), who's convinced he must bring the word of the Lord to a small Irish town. But his passion for a local girl leads him in a less-than-heavenly direction.

Back to School

Kanye West is the mild-mannered star who'll say anything

HIP-HOP | Maybe it's a testament to his musical greatness or that we have just become accustomed to artists making polemics in public. Nevertheless, Kanye West has been such a lightning rod for controversy, sometimes it upstages his superb sophomore disc, "Late Registration."

Last month, when the country was transfixed by the Hurricane Katrina catastrophe, West made that blundering statement, "George Bush doesn't care about black people" during NBC's "Concert for Hurricane Relief" special, sending shockwaves throughout America. While his acidic comment certainly mirrored that of others regarding the Bush administration's botched relief efforts, West was quickly branded as a wildcard.

A month prior, he caused an uproar when he called for an end to homophobia within the hip-hop community on MTV, citing being teased as a "mama's boy" as a child growing up in Chicago as something that helped fuel his once-homophobic stance. West's humanistic plea didn't just trigger many raised eyebrows in the hip-hop community; it made some in the gay community all the more suspicious about why he was making such a statement, considering that he wasn't actually "coming out."

Indeed, this has been a banner year for West, who graced the cover of Time magazine, a rarity for a rapper with street-cred such as his. In the cover story, "Why You Can't Ignore Kanye," writer Josh Tyrangiel traced the ascension of an unlikely hip-hop star, who favored natty Ivy-league-looking attire rather than the usual baggy street gear. The piece also revealed how he convinced the executives at Roc-A-Fella, namely Damon Dash, to let him rock the mic and their initial doubts about his skills, even though he had already produced mega-hits for Jay-Z, Cam'ron and Beanie Siegel.

West undeniably proved his street-cred, rhyming acumen and already established production skills on his splendid 2004 debut "The College Dropout," which sold more than three million copies and garnered 10 Grammy nominations.

And despite all the hullabaloo surrounding him, "Late Registration" looks prime to outsell its predecessor. He's upped the ante on his rapping, ironing out rhythmic wrinkles from the past, and, thanks to co-producer Jon Brion, the new album boasts a richer, more organic orchestral sound.

As for the material, West continues a healthy mix of obvious club-bangers ("Touch the Sky" and "Gold Digger") with more lyrically insightful joints like the poignant "Diamonds From Sierra Leone," on which he offers a poetic challenge to the bling factor, and the lovely "Hey Mama," a fluffy ode to his mother. Lyrically, there's nothing on "Late Registration" that'll instigate as much controversy as his remarks on Bush or hip-hop homophobia, but it definitely has enough artistic oomph to keep him in the public's eye after all that dust settles. JOHN MURPH

A Chill From the East

'Three Extremes' of East Asia's elegantly horrific filmmaking

FILM | What is going on in East Asia? Lately the Pacific Rim has become the epicenter of stylish, terrifying cinema. It's like someone laced the catering car with hallucinogenic shiitakes.

On the mild end, there are the fever dreams of Miyazake's "Howl's Moving Castle" and "Spirited Away." Then there are the creepier visions of Hideo Nakata's "Ringu." Now there's "Three Extremes," a gruesome horror triptych from three prominent Asian directors: Japan's Takashi Miike ("Audition"), Hong Kong's Fruit Chan ("Durian Durian"), and Korea's Park Chan-Wook

AX-MASTER: Lim Won-Hie in Park Chan-Wook's stylish, excruciating "Cut."

("Oldboy"). It's the minimalist, comic, stylized and truly disturbing Halloween-weekend offering at E Street Cinema.

In "Cut," a successful movie director is presented with an impossible choice: Kill a child or watch his beautiful pianist wife lose her fingers one by one. "Box" follows a female novelist, still reeling from guilt over her twin sister's death, as she faces her ghosts. In

"Dumplings," a retired actress desperate to retain her fading beauty seeks out a shadowy doctor whose special potstickers contain a particularly gut-churning ingredient.

All three directors understand that gore no longer shocks. The horror comes from watching ordinary people make monstrous decisions. No doubt there are doctoral theses being written at this very moment on the sociological sources of these nightmares — Mao, Kim Jong-il, Harry S. Truman, whoever.

But the films themselves terrify on a universal level. Nothing stronger than popcorn butter needed. BOB MASSEY

Drumming Up Nature

Kenny Endo raises the sound of thunder on his mighty drums

STAGE | "People think I'm crazy," Kenny Endo told a Japanese magazine, "because I get my tape recorder out whenever there's thunder, but you can't imitate that sound, even with the biggest taiko in the world." And taikos — Japanese drums — come in 7-foot, 700-lb. sizes. How will they get them through the doors of the Clarice Smith Center this weekend?

Ask any kid who's stumbled across an unguarded drum kit: Big drums are cool. And louder equals cooler. Maybe Endo can't quite replicate thunder, but he comes close enough to make hair stand on end.

A third-generation Japanese-American, Endo spent 10 years in his ancestral home mastering the art of taiko. He was the first foreigner to earn the stage name given to masters of classical Japanese drumming.

But Endo infuses the tradition with his background in jazz and Western classical music. Bamboo flutes and 17-string koto join vibraphones and congas — plus the taiko drums, which range in size from coffee can to Volkswagen.

Among the sounds Kenny Endo can imitate with delicate mallet strokes are rushing water and falling snow. His background in kabuki theater taught him how those sounds convey emotions. But Duke Ellington taught him that there's no such thing as jazz or rock or classical — just good and bad music. With every thunderstorm, Endo's music gets bigger — and better. BOB MASSEY

LOUDER THAN GRASS GROWING: The Kenny Endo Taiko Drum Ensemble includes bamboo flutes, the koto and congas.

Move Into the Light

Mary Roach asks what, if anything, happens after we die

PAGES | Mary Roach's 2003 best-seller "Stiff: The Curious Lives of Human Cadavers" was a classic case of right-book-right-time.

"Six Feet Under," where the book made a cameo, hadn't jumped the shark, "CSI" and its wound-cam had made forensic criminology a hot prospect for college study and we were far enough past 9/11 to again be able to revel in death's more peculiar details. Not since Jessica Mitford's "The American Way of Death" exposed the underbelly of the funeral biz had so much attention been placed on the part of our lives we aren't around to see.

With more and more people jumping on the faith bandwagon every day, it was only natural that Roach would switch her focus from body to soul for the follow-up.

After looking at corpses in "Stiff," Mary Roach takes on souls in "Spook."

Thursday at Politics & Prose, she'll read from her new book, "Spook: Science Tackles the Afterlife."

Although by nature a skeptic, Roach gamely plays along with seers, scientists and crackpots as they go in search of what, other than the obvious, makes us us. She travels to India for reincarnation,

North Carolina for a ghostly intervention in a property dispute and Cambridge for a genuine piece of carefully preserved ectoplasm.

She peers into the history of the hereafter and unearths characters like Duncan Macdougall, who endeavored to determine the mass of the soul. He also estimated that, upon release, the soul trucks into the ether like the garbled radio signals at the beginning of "Contact."

Roach meets current seekers as well, going so far as to enroll in medium school. The training doesn't take, but another medium does inform her that the afterlife is "Florida without the humidity."

Hot damn! I just knew there'd be dog tracks. GLENN DIXON

Follow That Ghost

A local tour company brings dead locals to life all over town

OUT & ABOUT | We've been on a lot of ghost tours, and it's a fact that the right tour guide makes or breaks a nighttime spin around any city's haunted places.

There was the nice older gentleman who preceded a tour firmly insisting that there's no such thing as ghosts as a flurry of bats swarmed overhead in the twilight, insisting otherwise. Then there was the puckish guy in Charleston, S.C., who pointed out engravings of John C. Calhoun on Confederate bills and then whispered, "Let's go meet him." And we did, at the old firebrand's grave. Brrrr.

Then there are Natalie Zanin's Historic Strolls, in which a cast of actors puts on costumes, gets into character and turns the city of Washington into a stage.

Consider that one of her guides in disguise almost got hauled in by the FBI, whose building he was furiously hanging in front of.

"They thought he was a suspicious person in disguise — I thought I had done a really good job with the costume, but apparently not. And they wanted his Social Security and everything. I was watching him and I thought, 'He's really in the moment, he's nervous ... playing Andrew Carnegie.' So that was a new one for us."

The Bad Olde Days tour (also known as Gangs of Washington), the Civil War tour, the Charles Dickens tour are all popular, but the one that attracts the most huddled, expectant crowds is the Ghost Story Tour of Washington.

"We walk around Lafayette Square," said Zanin "and stop in front of the haunted structures. The ghosts will be there and I wrote little scenes for them based on their tragic life experiences."

It's not just about chills and thrills, Zanin said. To know a human is to know a ghost.

"That way, you can understand why this ghost is haunting the Hay Adams Hotel and think, 'Oh, All right, I would haunt for that reason.'" We're sure the bats would agree. ARION BERGER (EXPRESS)

Buckethead doesn't need the gimmicks to prove he's an ace guitarist.

ly spells a good time. But the enigmatic Buckethead is truly epic on the ax, pitting a full-frontal, fleet-fingered assault on good taste with his stomping grindcore, the aural equivalent of a chainsaw to the, well, actually, it sounds exactly like having a chainsaw held to your ear. The "mutant guitar virtuoso," as he's described on his Web site, isn't a complete puzzle. He's toured with avant-funksters Praxis, Zillatron, Giant Robot and, of course, Giant Robot 2. He stunned crowds at '99's Ozzfest when he came out and ground the ax with Primus and takes his inspiration from sci-fi, horror and Disneyland. Can't hit the Jaycees' Haunted House this year? Has Buckethead got a ride for you.

An Act That Kills

'Where the Truth Lies' shows how close tragedy is to comedy

DOWNFALL | Evoking a combination of Frank Sinatra and Jerry Lewis, actor Kevin Bacon is by turns the slick, finger-snapping smoothie and the rubber-necking goofy kid, the perfect foil to his suave sidekick, Vince (Colin Firth).

The film is Atom Egoyan's "Where the Truth Lies." In this dark spin on Hollywood life in the 1950s, Bacon and Firth play superstar comic duo Lanny and Vince.

"Lanny is an extroverted, out-of-control, irresponsible, zany knucklehead," said Bacon. "But in fact he's the one in the duo who is most together."

"Where the Truth Lies" tells the story of two joined-at-the-hip performers spiraling downward in a frenetic, promiscuous, drug-filled world. At the center of this convoluted tale, which moves backward and forward across the decades, is a murdered girl who is discovered in the duo's hotel room. Stoned from booze and pills, neither man is entirely sure who killed her.

Factor in blackmail and hints of homosexuality, and careers and lives are at stake.

Bacon insists the film is not biographical, despite the obvious evocation of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis. But he studied their old clips, along with clips of Laurel and Hardy, Abbott and Costello, Rowan and Martin, even the Smothers Brothers.

"The Rat Pack was able to make audiences feel that they were hanging out with them, that they were in on the joke: the smoking, the drinking, the women," Bacon said.

Behind the onstage cavorting, the performers did share a powerful bond — one that was destructively symbiotic. "The relationship has to implode," said Bacon, "as it does with Lanny and Vince."

"One of the major challenges was to put together a viable '50s musical act that might have existed. I never did that kind of entertaining before. We were told to think Louis Prima." SIMI HORWITZ (VNU ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

2 Dreamer: Inspired by a True Story

This horse-race drama starring Dakota Fanning canters along, content to follow the Rules of Cute and Fuzzy Horse Movies. DESSON THOMSON

3 Wallace & Grommit: The Curse of the Were-Rabbit

The real attractions here are found not in the threadbare plot, but in the visual and verbal puns, contraptions and memorable supporting characters. ANN HORNADAY

4 The Fog

This remake of John Carpenter's film about demonic mist was not screened in time for critics.

'I'LL GIVE YOU A PONY': Director John Gatins gives Dakota Fanning motivation.

5 North Country

This drama about a real-life sexual harassment lawsuit is an engrossing, well-crafted story of an injustice avenged, hitting all the right notes of sympathy, outrage and, finally, relief. ANN HORNADAY

6 Elizabethtown

For all the time Kirsten Dunst and Orlando Bloom spend together, there is surprisingly little magic here. DESSON THOMSON

Indies&Arties

'A Midsummer Night's Dream'

Jay Carr introduces the notoriously ambitious, almost Expressionist film adaptation of Shakespeare's swooniest comedy starring virtually everyone in Hollywood. Directed by Max Reinhardt.

→ National Gallery of Art, 600 Constitution Ave. NW; Sun., 4:30 p.m.; 202-842-6799.

Victorian England

As part of the film series, W.W. Jacobs' story comes to misty life in the 1955 Arthur Lubin period thriller "Footsteps in the Fog," starring Stewart Granger and Jean Simmons. It's preceded by the 1923 Ben Turpin short (he of the famous crossed eyes) "Are Waitresses Safe?"

→ Library of Congress, 101 Independence Ave. SE; Fri., 7 p.m.; 202-707-5677.

Halloween Treats

AFI Silver brings the spooky with a variety of seasonally themed films this weekend, from Mel Brooks' comedy classic "Young Frankenstein" to F. W. Murnau's spine-tingling silent "Nosferatu," screened with live accompaniment by the Silent Orchestra (see E2), and the 1920 chill-

A Jewish legend about a man made of clay became the basis of "Der Golem."

er "Der Golem," with music from Baltimore-based Yeveto.

'Paradise Now'

The film about two young Palestinians recruited to be suicide bombers, where the journey takes them and where it leaves them, screens at National Geographic a week before it opens here. The 2005 drama (a Netherlands/Germany/France production) is sure to encourage debate; director Hany Abu-Assad ("Rana's Wedding") will introduce the film and lead a post-screening discussion.

→ National Geographic; 1600 M St. NW; Fri., 7 p.m., $10, $8 members; 202-857-7700.

A Nation's Scars

In 'Hiroshima Maiden' Bunkaru puppets relive a war's horrors

STAGE | Puppets and wartime atrocities don't usually go hand-in-hand, but they meld poignantly in Dan Hurlin's "Hiroshima Maiden."

The performance artist's latest work, presented in the style of traditional Japanese Bunraku puppetry, comes to the Kay Theatre at the University of Maryland's Clarice Smith Performing Arts Center this weekend.

The work dramatizes the true story of the "Hiroshima Maidens," women who were disfigured as a result of the atomic bomb dropped on the city in 1945. The women traveled to the United States in 1955 for plastic surgery, but were prohibited from being photographed by the State Department for fear that their disfigured bodies and faces would be too shocking.

The women were allowed to be seen only in silhouette and, in an eerie precursor to the current reality TV craze, appeared on "This Is Your Life," where they met the pilot of the plane that delivered the bomb that scarred them.

STEVE J. SHURMAN

PULLING STRINGS: In Bunkaru, puppeteers in black manipulate the large figures.

The tale serves as a basis for the performance, which also takes into account Hurlin's own memories of the 1950s. Although told from the perspective of one narrator, the work features nine puppets, dancers and live music.

The work's pairing of visuals and music stems from its use of the 400-year-old Japanese art of Bunraku puppetry. Taking into account the music, the dancing, the harrowing-yet-uplifting story and the 3-foot puppets, "Hiroshima Maiden" should make an impression. ERIN TROMPETER

COURTESY SHOREIRE

JEWS FOR JAMAICA: Hasidic reggae artist Matisyahu is the point where the religious rigor and love for music of both Judaism and Rastafarianism converge. And Matisyahu's skills at the mic are no joke. Fans of reggae and anyone interested in a close, rhymed reading of the Talmud should catch the man in black at Sixth & I Synagogue on Saturday.

It's Only a Movie, A Terrifying Movie

→ IF THE SHOWER SCENE in 'Psycho' still has you locking your bathroom door, a dose of silver-screen reality might be in order. Film historian Max Alvarez uncovers the old and new special-effect tricks that have been used to stun and terrify movie-watchers at his lecture, "Fright Night III: The Horrifying World of Special Effects." He documents this cinematic voyage from miniatures used in the creature feature "King Kong" to the imagery of the outer-space creepfest "Alien." S. ## Eating Around

CONTESTS

See Sonya Stuff Her Tummy With Many, Many Wings

Alexandria's own "Black Widow," the world-famous 90-pound eating machine Sonya Thomas, will be competing Saturday at 12:30 p.m. at UNION JACK'S in Bethesda in the International Federation of Competitive Eating's latest challenge: wings. Thomas and 12 other professional competitive eaters will stretch their stomachs in a variety of ways to accommodate as many wings they can in 10 minutes. (Are those boneless wings?)

Thomas, the local favorite, has won past eating challenges including downing 65 hard-boiled eggs in 6 minutes, 40 seconds; 550 oysters in 10 minutes and 80 chicken nuggets in 5 minutes.

But she'll be facing Tim "Eater X" Janus (who ate 31 grilled cheese sandwiches in 10 minutes) and Crazy Legs Conti (3½ pounds of pancakes and bacon in 12 minutes). The top prize winner will be a finalist in the Verizon VoiceWing Battle Championships in Boston on Nov. 12. MICHAEL GRASS (EXPRESS)

DAY OF THE LOCUSTS: Here, Alexandria's Sonya Thomas devours hot dogs in Philadelphia. On Saturday, the champ will be in Bethesda to down wings.

AUTUMN OFFERINGS Firefly Presents Drinks, Fall Menu to Warm You Up

Dupont Circle's FIREFLY is warming things up with five new autumn drinks: a spiced chocolate martini, the 1944 (Meyer's dark rum, Triple Sec, lime juice, almond syrup and rock-candy syrup), the Lemon-Cardamom drop (Skyyvodka, Lillet, and house-made lemon syrup with cardamom seeds, garnished with a lollipop), the Dark Forest (Miller's gin, Vya sweet vermouth, pear nectar, black currant nectar and pineapple sage) and La Grande Pomme (Woodford Reserve bourbon, a mixture of apple cider and apple brandy, and bitters). They've also started a "reverse happy hour" called the Whiskey Rebellion, beginning at 10:30 p.m. until last call; a different whiskey is featured nightly. The menu has also warmed up, with new dishes including roasted squash soup, crimini mushroom bruschetta and chicken noodle soup.

SEAFOOD

Hank's Oyster Bar Offers Rotating Spread of Mollusks

The noble oyster — one of the few foods that is both slimy and delicious. HANK'S OYSTER BAR now has a rotating list of seasonal favorites, including Wiley Points from Maine, Royal Miyagi from British Columbia and Rappahannock from Virginia. Served on the half-shell, the munchable mollusks are $2 each; the signature Sake Oyster Shooter is $3.

Those too wimpy to slurp 'em down raw can enjoy fried oysters, barbecued oysters and an oyster po' boy. K.P.K.

Pick Your Poison

New Brew | Southern Comfort

AFTER HURRICANE KATRINA ripped through the New Orleans area, disaster surrounded the facilities of the ABITA BREWING CO., about 35 miles north of the city. The storm surge from Lake Pontchartrain didn't reach the brewery, but there was considerable wind damage in and around the tiny town of Abita Springs.

"And by some miraculous force, the brewery was untouched," said Beth Harris, a spokeswoman for the brewery, which employs about 35 people.

So to help in Louisiana's recovery, Abita's brewers did what they know best: brew beer.

Last week, the first batch of Abita's Fleur-de-lis Restoration

Ale made its way into the national distribution network and could be popping up in a bar, restaurant or liquor store near us soon. The brewery describes Restoration Ale as a "brilliant gold ale with a rich body, mild bitterness and snappy fresh citrus hop flavor and aroma."

If you purchase it, you'll be drinking for a good cause. A dollar from every six-pack of Restoration sold will go to the Louisiana Disaster Recovery Foundation. And 100 percent of net proceeds from merchandise sales will go to the state foundation as well — so far, $55,000 in merchandise has been sold.

Abita's products, particularly its dark brown Turbodog ale, can be found in specialty grocers and other liquor stores in and around

Washington. Bars and restaurants that serve Turbodog either on tap or by the bottle include DC9, the West End restaurant BLACKIE'S, Dupont Circle's AFTERWORDS CAFE and the new ACADIANA restaurant in Mount Vernon Square.

More information on the company and its beers can be found at abita.com. MICHAEL GRASS (EXPRESS)

Cavalia: A huge white tent by the Penta-

CAVALIA.NET

WHOA: The horse spectacle "Cavalia" promises to be the most stylish thing on at least six legs.

Start Making Horse Sense

➔ A TEAM OF CANADIAN equestrians and more than 40 of their four-legged friends have galloped into the D.C. area to showcase the man-horse relationship at its finest. Underneath an enormous white tent, the horse extravaganza "Cavalia," created by one of the founders of derring-doers Cirque du Soleil, will showcase a magical fusion of skilled horsemanship and theatrical brilliance. Acrobats, contortionists and expert riders unite with their regal steeds to perform stunning trick-riding, gravity-defying stunts and choreographed equine dances. These horses sit, stand, kneel and could probably do a cartwheel if they felt like it. 1179 S. Fern St., Arlington; through Nov. 15, $49-$79; 866-999-8111. JACQUELINE FORSTER

WHAT DO YOU WANNA DO TONIGHT? BY FRITZ HAHN, RHOME ANDERSON AND DAVID MALITZ

DUDES, WE CAN SEE YOU: Los Amigos Invisibles look like guys you don't actually want to be your friends, but trust us, you do.

THURSDAY

A veritable who's who of local music legends teams up to raise money for Gulf Coast musicians displaced by Katrina at the STATE THEATRE for a show billed as Hell or High Water. Just about every genre will be represented: Godfather of Go-Go Chuck Brown, bar-band blues kings the Nighthawks, Afrofunk big band Chopsteeth, roots-rockers Rhodes Tavern Troubadours, hard-bop tenor saxman Buck Hill, the Big Easy-fueled gumbo of the Grandsons. Your $25 buys you a local music-history lesson and the satisfaction that you are helping those in need. Hard to beat that.

Last week, Rhome and Fritz went on a brief "Let's go check out some new stuff" trip and wound up at Christine Moritz's new Thursday-night residency at ALERO on U Street. Christine — who's had residencies at Eighteenth Street Lounge and Indebled — makes it worth the trip, spinning a downtempo mix that draws in Alice Russell, the Goten Project and local favorites Fort Knox Five. The vibe is warm and cozy and there are plenty of carefully grouped couches and loveseats. There's no cover, and the music runs from 8:30 p.m. to midnight.

FRIDAY

Ever wonder how Brazilians celebrate Halloween? Neither did we. And you probably won't find out at Euronet International's Evening of Horror 3 (aka Noite do Horror 3), which is billed as a Euro-Brazilian dance party at the WYNDHAM CITY CENTER hotel. We're intrigued by the John Legend makes the ladies swoon, even performing mere hosting duties.

Brazilian dance show and multiple dance floors with Brazilian, Euro and Top 40 music. Tickets are $10 in advance, more at the door. Purchase them from www.euronetinternational.com/events.

What do you get when you combine the pulse of house music, the cheekiness of disco, the dynamicism of jazz fusion and the aggressiveness of rock? That's the recipe for Los Amigos Invisibles and possibly a pulled ham if you don't prep properly before the band's show. Los Amigos bring the Latin-fueled organic dance music to the BLACK CAT, prefaced by a DJ set from the band's own guitarist, whose secret turntablist identity is DJ Afro.

SATURDAY

You'd be hard-pressed to find a club with a better lineup this week than Iota. Thursday brings folk troubadour Richard Buckner; Friday it's raucous garage-rock vets the Fleshtones; Sunday is vivid folk storyteller James McMurtry; and Monday is the reunited alt-country group Freakwater. But the highlight of the week is tonight's show with the Clientele. The British trio plays shimmering indie pop where the only thing that's heavy is the reverb on Alasdair MacLean's guitar.

Pittsburgh's Boilermaker Jazz Band, at the GLEN ECHO SPANISH BALLROOM tonight, plays some of the hottest hot jazz Fritz has ever heard. The George Gee Orchestra is a favorite of New York Lindy Hoppers, thanks to a smooth, tight sound. Tonight, it's $18 for three hours of dancing and a swing lesson.

Breaking news! John Legend's coming to P.G. County to get a check! Er, John Legend is "hosting" a party at the ICON tonight! Ladies love Legend, even when it costs $20 to hang out with him. DJ Damon will provides the party sounds.

SUNDAY

Revelers venture into Mount Pleasant never to be seen again! OK, nothing that dramatic will happen at the DEVIL'S TRIANGLE BAR CRAWL — or so we hope — but it's a good excuse for intrepid explorers to venture into what is, for many, uncharted territory. The Raven and Wonderland are jointly sponsoring this Halloween party, with a free shuttle bus servicing the three bars every 15 to 20 minutes between 9 p.m. and 2 a.m., with costume contests and drink specials at each bar.
